Design choices

- The design choices in margin are based on the data so it is represented in a (semi-)pretty manner.
- The size of the dots is done in a way that they are all shown without some being extra large. I tried multiple ratios for this, like the log function but square root showcased the clearest results.
- I choose to show continents instead of countries as with countries there would have been too many points in the legend.
- Finally by increasing the size of the dots when the mouse is hovering over it, you can clearly see the dot that is meant and the text is placed just at the right of the dot to clearly see the text apart from the dot.
