Design choices

- The design choices in margin are based on the data so it is represented in a (semi-)pretty manner.

- The x-axis is on top for as the used file is large, so if it is on the bottom you won't see it.

- The colours blue and red are chosen with blue being a more relaxing colour and red standing more out, so the selected bar is shown red as it should stand out more.

- Putting the values of the what the charts are not on the y-axis but in the charts themselves is because of the longer names the charts have, does saving room with this choice.

- More design choices are rather logical and mostly rely on placing the chart, axis and texts on pretty locations.
